PRESS RELEASE

Enyo Law appoints new partner

LONDON - 25 January 2019 - Specialist disputes firm Enyo Law is delighted to announce the appointment of Richard Levett, a commercial litigation and business crime specialist, as a partner.

Richard has extensive experience of complex international disputes for corporates, financial institutions and high net worth individuals. He also brings significant expertise in relation to business crime matters, including internal investigations, corporate criminal defence and compliance.

Simon Twigden, Enyo Law's Senior Partner, commented "we are delighted to welcome Richard into the partnership. His arrival further strengthens our already significant capabilities in commercial litigation and civil fraud but also adds business crime to Enyo Law's market offering. Richard's appointment underlines Enyo Law's position at the forefront of the disputes market and a leading choice for top level practitioners and clients. We look forward to having him on board."

Richard added, "I am genuinely delighted to be joining Enyo Law and to be able to play a part in its continued success. Its commercial litigation and fraud practices align squarely with my own and I am excited to be able to enhance Enyo Law's offering with my business crime experience. Enyo Law is renowned for the quality of its lawyers and its instructions and I look forward to developing my practice further with the firm."

Note to Editors:

Richard holds law degrees at undergraduate and postgraduate level from the Universities of Sheffield and Cambridge respectively. He has practiced at DLA Piper, Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer and most recently, at Addleshaw Goddard from where he joined Enyo Law in January 2019.
